While the current economic slowdown may have hit shipping hard, this presents growth opportunities. The One Belt, One Road (“OBOR”) and the Partnership for Quality Infrastructure initiatives and the expanded Suez Canal and Panama Canal, in tandem with the fourth industrial revolution and e-commerce demands, will invigorate shipping and logistics networks.

Be prepared for the opportunities that lie ahead by getting to grips with all aspects of the law in this sector. This rigorous 3-weekend course is dedicated towards just that, by giving both lawyers and industry professionals in the maritime and shipping sphere an in-depth look at the law. While the course is pegged at the level of a lawyer with at least 5 years’ post-qualification experience, non-legal industry practitioners are invited to benefit from the expert instruction by legal practitioners in the forefront of this field.
